NUMBER 266

Any man who will hang the Guiteau jury should likewise be hanged for the public good.

The Iowa people are naming their babies after Blaine. It will soon be a State of Blaines.

Seville's tongue, which has continued like the waves of the sea for two days, has been brought to bay.

Oscar Wilde should go to Virginia and lecture. Two girls, of Rockingham, in that State, recently fought a duel with shot guns.

Judge Gray, of Massachusetts, is the tallest man who ever sat upon the bench of the United States Supreme Court. He is 6 feet and 7 inches.

They have set a value of $12,500 on a man's leg in Brooklyn, New York. That is what the court gave a man who lost a leg by the negligence of the street-car company.

Senator Fair lives in Charles Sumner's old quarters at Washington. He is the richest man in Congress, and perhaps the richest office-holder in the world. His leisure is devoted to the study of finance.

It is said that when Caroline Richings-Pearard died the other day of small-pox, she could not bid her husband farewell, and she died without seeing him. Since her untimely death, a paragraph has found its way in the papers to the effect that on the thirteenth anniversary of her marriage, Mrs. Bernard gave a dinner party, at which there were thirteen people. On the 13th of a certain month she signed a contract which cost her $60,000. She was sick thirteen days, and died on the 13th of January.

And just think of it, there is not a man in all the State better qualified for the Austrian mission or any other mission in Europe, than ex-Governor William E. Smith. As a polished gentleman, a man well informed on all public questions, State or National, a thorough scholar, and a man entirely fit for the company of court dignitaries, he has no superior in Wisconsin. This is just the measurement of the man when you speak of foreign missions.

It has two or three times been stated by the Gazette that the charge Dr. Agnew of Philadelphia, for attending President arfield, was $8,000. He made some thirty visits, and therefore thinks the bill of $8,000 exceedingly reasonable. In explanation of this matter, he has written a letter to the special congressional committee on President Garfield's expenses in which he says that for such visits as he made to the President he would in ordinary cases charge from $750 to $1,000 a visit. He also says that for the first operation in any other case he would have charged $5,000. One can now see how Dr. Agnew is classed among the millionaires of Philadelphia.

The Madison Democrat offers a good and timely suggestion when it recommends the cutting down of the number of public documents bound in paper. There are some reports which are useful because they are valuable, as for instance the reports of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, the Railway Commission, the Secretary of State, the State board of charities and reform, and the forthcoming report of the State board of control, and these should be bound in cloth fit for the library, and then they would be preserved. But under the present system more than half of the documents pertaining to affairs of the State and its institutions, are wasted because they are flimsily bound in paper and are not fit for the library. It would be better for persons interested in State matters, and much cheaper for the State, to have these important State documents properly bound in cloth, and then to cut down the number printed. Not one copy of these reports should leave the State printer unbound, and in the language of the Madison Democrat, the Legislature might multiply ten fold the value of these public documents and not materially increase their cost to the State, by having a few numbers printed and all bound in cloth so that the numbers will be permanent.

They are publishing some interesting campaign news even at this late date in which John W. Bookwalter, late Democratic candidate for Governor of Ohio, is deeply interested. New and laughable facts are constantly coming out, and the more they are brought to the light the more ridiculous and humiliating is the position and defeat of Mr. Bookwalter. Among the latest contributions is the following:

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 8, 1881. Hon. John W. Bookwalter, Springfield, Ohio: Send $5,000. Ask no questions, but send at once. CLARENCE IRVING, Chairman.

This is the five thousand dollar straw which broke the camel's back. He had already given the Democratic committee $12,000 and had distributed $20,000 among the newspapers to cheer them up and magnify their zeal. This dispatch staggered him and exhausted his patience. His eyes were opened at the boundless greed and the impudent cheek of the Democratic leaders, and he refused to comply with the request. It was not until he had thrown away a handsome little fortune, did he clearly see that instead of organizing a campaign for his election, the Democrats were engaged in making a raid on his pocket-book. He has all the experience in the Democratic party he wants, but he can not but feel that he paid too dearly for his lesson.

COMMITTEE DISCUSSIONS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—In the discussion of the question of the organization of the House committee to-day, Congressman Williams of Wisconsin said in reply to Bedford that Wisconsin, in support of her candidate for the Speakership, had acted on her candor and confidence and judgment. Until after the election of Speaker, not one member from Wisconsin had mentioned to him the question of "Chairman" or "committee." The Speaker's life had not been spent in a corner, but on the battlefield and in the halls of legislation, and until some private or public wrong was fastened on any man holding such high office, he hoped he should not hear it either openly stated on the floor, or insidiously hinted, that there had been opportunities for bribery in the way of parceling out committeeships. The Wisconsin Republicans had supported the speaker because they had confidence in his capacity, his intelligence, his candor, and his fairness. He (Williams) hoped Wisconsin members would distinguish themselves on the committees by industry if not by exalted capacity. He knew that, usually, not one-fourth of the members present could rise at a given time and give a clear and intelligible statement of what was before the House. He did not know any remedy for that under the present regime, but he hoped some Christopher Columbus, navigating this great sea of legislation, would discover some law by which a tribunal could be organized, and the number of legislators removed, so as to let the House devote itself to its real business.

PENSIONS.

WASHINGTON, January 19.—Commissioner Dudley has made two decisions that will be of interest to pensioners. He decides that if a soldier was captured in good health, and when released was found to have contracted a disease, it will be presumed that he was "disabled in the line of duty"; also, that if a soldier was captured in line and never heard of again, or the proof of his death cannot be established, it will be presumed that he died on duty, and a pension will be paid to his widow.

The Soldiers and Sailors' National League this evening condemned the attacks recently made in Congress and in the newspapers upon the arrears of pension act, expressed disapproval at all efforts to bring about the repeal, and thanked Senators Voorhees and Ingalls for their defense of the measure and their advocacy of the interests of the soldiers and sailors of the Republic.

OBITUARY.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 19.—Lieut. William Kendrick died at 3 o'clock this afternoon of paralysis, aged 63 years. The deceased was born in Darien, Genesee County, N. Y., Oct. 8, 1816. His early life was spent upon his father's farm. In 1838 Mr. Kendrick removed to Buffalo, where he engaged in mercantile business, from which he retired in 1855, and coming to this city opened a livery establishment, which he successfully managed for a number of years. In 1861 he was appointed Judge, serving under C. H. Larken, holding the position one year, when he was made First Lieutenant of Police, in which capacity he faithfully served the city for the past eighteen years.

MANY MISERABLE PEOPLE drag themselves about with failing strength, feeling that they are steadily sinking into their graves, when, by using Parker's Ginger Tonic, they would find a cure commencing with the first dose, and vitality and strength surely coming back to them. See other column.

ANOTHER HORROR.

PESTH, Jan. 19.—News has been received of the destruction by fire of the Circus Kremsier at Bucharest. The flames spread so rapidly it was with the utmost difficulty any person in the establishment could escape, and when the fire was under control, the discovery was made that many men and horses had been burned. Intense excitement prevailed during the conflagration, the horrors of which were added to by the fearful struggling and howling of beasts in the menagerie, opposite the circus enclosures. Many beasts were terribly scorched by the heat, and made desperate efforts to escape from their cages. The loss of property is very heavy.

For chills, fever, ague, and weakness, GOLDEN'S LIQUID BEEF AND TONIC INVIGORATOR. Golden's; take no other. Of druggists.

THE KEYES TRUIBLE.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 19.—The Keyes divorce case has been settled and there will be no contest in the courts. Mrs. Keyes goes to Chicago to-morrow, not to return. She takes her personal effects and furniture, and her husband makes her an allowance in lieu of dower rights, the amount of which is not made public. The Circuit Court meets Jan. 23, when a decree of divorce will be asked for and obtained without opposition.

DR. KEMPSTER.

OSHKOSH, Jan. 19.—Dr. Walter Kempster, of the Northern Hospital for the Insane, returned from Washington to-day, and reiterates his opinion that Guiteau is sane. He believes him to be a sharper lawyer than Seville, and is of the firm belief that the jury will bring in a verdict of guilty, unless Judge Cox delivers an opinion favorable to the prisoner.

THE WHIPPING-POST.

PETERSBURG, Va., January 19.—Gregory Sternoni, an Italian merchant of this city, convicted of receiving and selling stolen manufactured tobacco, has been sentenced to receive twenty stripes at the public whipping-post.

How a Handful of Mounted Police Keep a Host of Redskins in Awe.

The special correspondent of the London Times, who made the Northwest tour with Lord Lorne, praises up the mounted police, of whom (he says) it would be difficult to speak too highly. Lord Lorne, always very keen in military matters since the days when he himself worked con amore in a volunteer artillery corps, and for an amateur, therefore, an unusually good judge, pronounced them "as fine a troop as he ever saw." They are ludicrously underhanded for the ground they have to cover, and the number of Indians and white men, often more unmanageable than Indians, whom they are expected to keep in order. They are 300, and the Indians may be counted by tens of thousands. Yet, if a crime be committed on the prairie, a handful of mounted police seize the criminal, a chief it may be, surrounded by his tribe, and carry him off to the nearest fort as coolly as a policeman would take up a pickpocket in Cheapside. Not long ago some Cree chiefs, considering themselves aggrieved by the Government, seized upon some Government cattle passing through their territory, killing and eating three. Colonel Herschmer and six of his men happened to come to the place almost the same day. They at once summoned the chiefs to surrender. The chiefs refused, armed themselves and their immediate followers, and, as the police approached, fired a volley over, but pretty near, their heads to intimidate them. Had the fire been returned the police, far outnumbered, would probably have been slain to the last, and the Government would have been obliged to send a large body of the law, they walked under the bullets right into the Indian camp, handcuffed three chiefs and carried them off, amid loud protestations and threats, but no actual violence. A still more striking case occurred quite recently among the Blackfeet. One of the Mounted Police was murdered, shot in the back—by a young Blackfoot Indian, whose father had, or thought he had, a grievance against the Government, and on his death-bed bequeathed the legacy of vengeance to his son. The murderer at first escaped over the American frontier, but coming back was taken by a small body of police from the very midst of his tribe, to whom he appealed in vain, though they knew enough of English customs to know that he was being carried to death. He is now in Fort MacLeod, to which we are on our way, and though his execution is a certainty, and the Blackfeet, many of them armed with Winchester, are quite numerous and powerful enough to avenge—as they might have reason to—him, indeed, powerful enough to raise war, not the slightest apprehension is felt of their making any serious difficulty, or the Governor General, I need scarcely say, would not be allowed to go among them, except under the strongest protests from those responsible for his safety. The Indians know well that nothing more than strict justice has been or will be done. What is perhaps still more curious than their submitting to the control of the police, rather than resist it by force, is that they voluntarily make use of it themselves. If an Indian nowadays has his horse stolen, instead of going at once on the war-path, and trying to recover it himself, together with the thief's scalp, he appeals to the police, and expects them to recover it, which they usually do.
